

About the Artist and SOARposters

Sarah Roy is an artist in Tennessee who has been interested in drawing and sculpting since childhood. She won local and national art contests in both elementary and high school and later attended the Governor's School for the Arts in Murfreesboro, Tennessee. Inspired by her mother, Billie Jo Roy, an English teacher, she has found a new use for her artwork in creating motivational, content-specific posters that promote learning and appreciation for all kinds of literature. These posters can enhance any classroom wall while also encouraging student discussion of major literary works and themes.

Additional samples of Sarah's work can be viewed online at SOARposters.com.

SOARposters is a home-operated business dedicated to promoting educational, content-specific art and learning aids. Based in Tennessee, the company produces posters and artwork specifically designed for middle school and high school classrooms and libraries.

The Language of Literature Grades 6–12

